—Everybody will be at the fair to-day.

—Advertising pluck is what business men need.

—H. S. Davis has moved his family to Humboldt.

—Capt. Jones has moved into Dr. Bee-man's house.

—Not a very good attendance at the fair last Thursday.

—To-day will be the big day of the fair—provided it don't rain.

—Take your quinine regular and vote the Republican ticket straight.

—There will be no preaching at the Presbyterian church to-morrow.

—Will Yates, of Thayer, is visiting friends in our town and attending the fair.

—Joe. Bertrand has gone to Neosho Falls to work on the Woodson County Post.

—We will publish the list of premiums awarded at the fair now in progress next week.

—Prof. J. Shomon has gone to Coffeyville to take charge of the public schools at that place.

—We have a rain storm as we go to press—Friday night—which promises to break up the fair.

—Of those big squashes at the fair grounds the largest weighs one hundred and fifteen pounds.

—S. J. Cowan has moved into the house, on Madison avenue, formerly occupied by Capt. Jones.

Married, at Geneva, October 5th, by Rev. M. Irwin, Mr. S. G. Cooley and Miss Eunice Carpenter.

—S. S. Tipton, of Anderson county, has a splendid herd of short-horn cattle on exhibition at our fair.

—W. W. Sain, of the Woodson County Post, was in our town last Thursday. He was looking after a "type sticker."

—The schools were dismissed yesterday to give the scholars and teachers an opportunity for attending the fair.

—Splendid premiums to be awarded to the best looking baby—white and colored—at the fair grounds to-day.

—The shaking in some portions of our county is reported on the decrease, but there is still a good demand for quinine.

—J. L. Dennison and wife, of Osage Mission, were in our town this week visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Briggs.

—The prospect for a rain yesterday afternoon about four o'clock started the people living some distance from town home in a hurry.

—Our public schools will be closed next week that the teachers may attend the institute at Humboldt. Boys, don't be idle; look after the nuts.

—The Board of County Commissioners met in regular session last Monday morning. They also held a meeting on Friday and will probably meet again one day next week.

—Mr. Brubaker, of Ohio, has lately been visiting with his brother D. C. Brubaker. It is his first trip west and he expressed himself highly pleased with our country.

—Rev. S. G. Clark, started to La Crosse, Minn. county, last Monday morning to attend the meeting of the Presbyterian Synod. He will be absent until some time next week.

—Daniel Covert, one of the early settlers of this county, who not a great while ago moved back to Indiana with Dr. G. W. Covert, is in our county now visiting among his old friends.

—If those persons who assemble at the court house to-day are not Democrats, they are at least actuated by one of the cardinal principles of the Democratic party, which is—get office.

—The Allen County Teachers' Institute meets at Humboldt next week. The public schools throughout the county will be closed during the session, as the law requires all the teachers to be present.

—If you want to know the names of the county officers to be elected this fall you will find them in the first column on the second page of this paper under the heading, "County Republican Ticket."

—One of the best races of the fair took place on Thursday, and although it was not on the programme it created a good deal of amusement. A jack rabbit put in his appearance on the grounds and a number of hounds and cur dogs gave him a chase.

—Old father Ball, Judge Talcott's father-in-law, who for a number of years was a resident of our city, died at Valparaiso, Ind., last Monday. He was unconscious for several days before his death and died peacefully and without pain. Mr. Ball was quite feeble last year when he moved back to Indiana.

ALLEN COUNTY FAIR.

The ninth annual fair of the Allen County Agricultural and Mechanical Association, now in progress on their grounds in this city, was commenced last Wednesday under rather unfavorable circumstances, as there was every indication that the storm of the night before might continue for several days, but before night the clouds were dispersed and all fears of a failure were thus removed, and during the day about the usual number of entries for the first day were made, although not many of the articles for exhibition were brought in. Thursday was a delightful day and early in the morning thoroughbred horses, short-horn cattle and fine hogs were brought in to compete for the premiums offered on fine stock, and big specimens of farm products of all kinds were taken to the agricultural department, while in the department of mechanical arts and in the floral hall a good showing and a fine display was made. The rain Tuesday night had laid the dust and got the race track in good condition, and although the attendance was not large those present spent the time real pleasantly, and the general management of affairs during the day gave good satisfaction. As entries were made and articles for exhibition continued to come in until a late hour Thursday night everybody expected a much better fair on Friday, and they were not disappointed.

On Friday morning the halls presented a much better appearance than they had done the day previous, and long before noon time they were thronged with people who admired the many things worthy their attention and the neat manner in which all the articles were arranged for exhibition. In the afternoon there was a large attendance, people from all parts of the county and adjoining counties being present, and the fair was pronounced a complete success. During the day the committees awarded the premiums in the different departments to such articles as they thought were most deserving. In the horticultural department the display of fruit, and especially of apples, was excellent. If any one had any doubts as to our soil and climate being especially adapted to the raising of fine fruits, those doubts would all be removed by a careful examination of the variety and excellent quality of the apples and late varieties of peaches on exhibition. In the culinary department there was a good showing of bread, cakes, butter, and cheese. Every one claims to be competent to act on a committee for this department, but how the committee on the present occasion decided who was entitled to the premium we are at a loss to know. There was the usual display of preserves, jellies, etc., and they looked about the same and as tempting as we remember such things when we were a boy and stole them from our grandmother's larder. The articles in the floral and fine arts department were numerous and beautiful and attracted much attention. The competition for premiums in the agricultural department is not so great as was expected nor the display so good, for there never was a time when the farmers of any county in this State could make a better display of farm products than can the farmers of Allen county at the present time. The corn, beans, potatoes, squashes, pumpkins, castor beans, etc., on exhibition are all good, but few of our farmers have tried for the premiums offered in this department. They doubtless all rejoice over their abundant crops and meet at the fair more to congratulate each other than to compete for premiums. It has been literally true in Allen county this season that it was only necessary to "tickle the ground with a hoe and it laughed with an abundant harvest."

The speed ring, as usual, attracted much attention and nearly everybody—whether they were in favor of or opposed to horse racing—witnessed the trials of speed.

We were promised a report of the races of Thursday and Friday for publication to-day, but our special reporter failed to report.

TEMPERANCE.

Me thinks I hear a voice. Hark! Ah yes! it is the voice of Mr. License soliciting. Let us hear what he will say; for he is talking about himself. "I wish some saloon keeper would come and take me out of this stupid and lonely place, and the legal authorities would fill up my blanks so that I could go out into society where I could do my work and have fun among the boys without fearing that Mr. Law would catch me. I would deal out poison to the neighbors in such pleasant forms that few would suspect that there was death in the cup. I'd debilitate the mental, moral and physical powers of those who become votaries of my flowing bowl. I'd kill the noble affections of the soul. I'd drive happiness from the home circle. I'd rend the hearts of the parents of that young man by sending him home at a late hour with an unsteady step, glassy eyes and the sick headache. I'd create in men a desire for that which is vile and debasing. And very many unwary youths would I entice to partake of my tempting beverage. If I can get them to taste 'just this once,' it is hardly possible that they will then forsake me. In fine, I would make miserable drunken wrecks of what God created noble and happy men. But more than all this, I would damn the souls of the multitudes of those who tip my silvery cup and vainly endeavor to assuage their burning thirst from my sparkling fountain."

Oh! my brother, does not this soliloquy present undeniable truths which press their claims upon us? There is no one subject in moral or political economy which so deeply interests us as a nation, as a state, as a county, and as individuals as does the one question of temperance. It is the greatest curse we have. It fills more insane asylums and penitentiaries than any other one thing. It must be conceded that the vast stream of intemperance flows through the broad channel of license. It is our privilege as free citizens and our duty as moral and accountable beings to close the flood gate of this mighty channel and thus shut off this poisoned stream before it reaches those over whom the Father has placed us watchmen. "But" says Mr. M., who has silently, if not verbally, sanctioned the license, "if neighbor B. has no more sense than to spend his money and time at the saloon and get drunk, that is his business, not mine." I do not wish to lengthen this article by producing arguments to set forth the fallacy of such reasoning; for every sane person can see it if he will give the matter careful thought. I have been very unhappily surprised by hearing of prominent church members in some of the adjacent towns giving their names and influence in favor of license. "Oh!" say they, "it will live up the town and bring us more trade." Every dollar obtained through the influence of a saloon will be a curse. It would be far better to turn an infatuated lion loose in the streets than to grant a man license to sell intoxicating liquors.
